

Answer to the (four) question only

Q1/ Answer the following

A-/ Define (Two) of the following

- 1- Pain 2- Neuropathic pain 3- Absorption

B-/ Preoperative phase assessment includes collecting and reviewing specific client data Explain it.

Q2/ Point the following sentences with the (True and False) (10Marks)

1- Surgeries are categorized according to the degree of risk (timely intervention of surgery)

2- Stimulants of pain means any stimulus that causes tissue damage or perceived by the individual and causing injury to the body tissue causes pain, so pain may result from a number different kind of damaging stimuli.

3- most practitioners classify intensity of pain by using a standard scale: 0 (no pain) to 10 (moderate possible pain) scale.

4- Protein, are organic compounds that contain carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, and nitrogen atoms. Protein is the only nutrient that can build, repair, and maintain body tissues.

5- High-biological-value proteins (complete proteins) contain all of the nonessential amino acids, which is animal proteins, such as those in meat, poultry, fish, dairy products, and eggs.

6- Elective surgery is performed immediately to preserve function or the life of the client.

7- Post operative Nursing Diagnosis, depending on the individual client's needs, regarding Ineffective Tissue Perfusion (Cardiopulmonary) related to, anesthesia. Position or immobility.

8- Metabolism, is the process of eliminating or removing waste products from the body.

9- Protein, are organic compounds that contain carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, and nitrogen atoms. A person must ingest a maximum of 20 to 30 grams of protein each day to prevent a net loss of body proteins as daily requirements

10- Undesirable change in weight is one of points must be assessed in the assessment of nutritional state for elderly clients.

Q3/ Fill the following blanks

1- During surgery phase begins when -----and -----.

2- Complicating the categorization of pain by location is the fact that some pains ----- Pain may also be -----of the body.

3- Nutrients are classified as -----.

4- Water-soluble vitamins ----- require daily ingestion in normal quantities because these vitamins are not stored in the body.

5- -----normally involves little risk, produces few complications and is often performed in a (day surgery) such as breast biopsy, removal of tonsils.

6- Post operative Wound Management involved. -----, -----, -----.

7- Protein, are organic compounds that contain carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, and nitrogen atoms. Protein is the only nutrient that can build, repair, and maintain body tissues. The basic building materials of protein are -----.

8- Nutritional assessment must be performed logically and should include a ----- to be included in the nutritional assessment.

9- In nutritional assessment, a physical assessment requires -----.

10- Cancer pain may result from the -----.

Over time, other diagnosis has been included in the "malignant pain" category, such as HIV/ AIDS or burn pain.

Q4/ Answer the following

A-/ Enumerate the functions of the fat.

B-/ Explain the basic nutritional assessment, in the pregnant client:

Q5/ Answer (Two) of the following

A-/ Compare with the Acute Versus Chronic Pain regarding Physiologic and Behavioral signs

B-/ Mention how you can Assess the pain during application of nursing process

C-/ How you can Evaluate the pain during application of Nursing processes

Lecturer :

Head of the Dep.

/ / 2017

/ / 2017